KEY STAFF

Leadership

The DIILS executive leadership team includes the Director, Colonel Kirk L. Davies, USAF, the Deputy Director, CDR Bill Smith, JAGC, USN, and the Special Assistant for Plans and Strategy, Mr. Jeffrey Stefani.

Regional Programs

Regional Program Directors (RPD) design, plan and implement strategically relevant legal engagement events in coordination with the Office of the Secretary of Defense, the Geographic Combatant Commands (GCC), and embassy country teams worldwide. While they focus mainly on mobile programs, RPDs also plan and execute some resident courses, such as the Legal Aspects of Combating Terrorism and Law of Armed Conflict and Human Rights courses.

Resident Programs

The Resident Program Director and his team plan and conduct ten annual resident courses. These multinational and multi-regional courses address the most widely requested legal topics. These courses are conducted on Naval Station Newport, and include field studies program and cultural events designed to reinforce academic topics.

International Operations Officers

Representing all U.S. military services, the International Operations Officers (IOO) are at the heart of DIILS global operations. Their responsibilities align with the GCC regions. IOOs work with respective RPDs in program design, curriculum selection, and logistics management for each mobile program. They are often the primary coordinators with the country team (SCO, DATT), team leaders, presenters, and they draft after-action reports. DIILS Program Assistants arrange team travel and country clearances, coordinate visa applications with foreign embassies, and distribute administrative and travel documents to adjunct instructors.

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE

DEFENSE INSTITUTE OF INTERNATIONAL LEGAL STUDIES
441 ELLIOT AVENUE
NEWPORT, RI 02841-1531

Thank you for your interest in the Defense Institute of International Legal Studies (DIILS). In these pages, you will find descriptions of course offerings covering the full spectrum of rule of law issues. So, why choose DIILS?

DIILS has over 25 years of global experience as the lead U.S. defense security cooperation resource for professional legal education and engagement with international defense sector personnel. Our objective is to develop and implement effective security cooperation programs that build partner legal capacity, including equitable, transparent and accountable defense institutions, civilian control of the military, human rights, and democratic governance.

Our mobile education teams, resident courses and other engagements focus on strengthening defense institutions and on sharing best practices to address the legal challenges partner military and civilian leaders face while conducting operations.

Our instructors – officers with extensive operational experience and expertise and leading civilian government experts – deliver relevant and insightful programs featuring interactive content and real-world scenarios.

Our location in Newport, RI is ideal for resident programs. Newport is an internationally recognized destination, showcasing American cultural and historical attractions. Its proximity to Boston, New York, and Washington, within an hour by plane, is convenient for field studies programs and guest speakers.

Our events are funded on a reimbursable basis. Our most frequent funding sources include International Military Education and Training (IMET) and Expanded IMET, Global Train and Equip (Section 2282), Peacekeeping Operations, Defense-wide Operations and Maintenance, the Combating Terrorism Fellowship Program, and the Wales Initiative Fund.

DIILS is truly global. Since its inception in 1992 as a detachment to the Naval Justice School, more than 1,300 participants from over 75 countries have benefited from our resident programs in Newport, and over 1800 mobile programs have reached more than 65,000 military and civilian participants from 150 countries.

DIILS strives to be responsive and agile, but our resources are finite, so timely requests for support are critical. Please contact us early to plan a mobile engagement tailored to a particular legal challenge, or to program participants in our resident courses. Contact information for DIILS staff can be found on the inside back cover of our course catalog.

We look forward to working with you!

Director

KEY STAFF

The Defense Institute of International Legal Studies (DIILS) is the lead U.S. defense security cooperation resource for professional legal engagement with international military service members and related civilians. The goal of DIILS global engagement is to strengthen partner nation legal capacity through activities that promote equitable and accountable defense and military justice sectors, civilian control of the military, enhanced compliance with human rights standards and international humanitarian law, and democratic governance.

DIILS is a jointly-staffed institute comprised of Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine, and Coast Guard Judge Advocates, as well as experienced civilian attorneys and staff. Our typical audience includes international military personnel and related civilians. The majority of DIILS participants are not lawyers, although we offer some resident courses for lawyers, e.g., the Military Law Development Program (MLDP I and II) and the International Law of Military Operations (ILOMO) course.

DIILS accomplishes its mission in three settings: resident programs in Newport, Rhode Island (U.S.), tailored mobile programs delivered worldwide, and programs that bring foreign participants to U.S. locations, such as Washington, DC, Chicago, Boston, and New York City. This strategic agility helps stakeholders achieve regional and country objectives by sequencing sustained engagements based on goals, priorities, and funding. Thus, DIILS can reach a variety of related audiences in a relatively short timeframe.

Commitment to Excellence

DIILS remains committed to providing unrivaled subject matter expertise and curriculum in a manner that respects cultural sensitivities and encourages diversity of opinion. Over 200 adjunct instructors bring their real-world military and civilian expertise to DIILS programs. They are seasoned, uniformed instructors and leading civilian experts from the executive, legislative and judicial branches of the U.S. government, academia, international partners, and, in some cases, the private sector.

A Team of Experts

DIILS instructors are selected for their recent and relevant expertise and for their knowledge of the legal issues affecting partner countries. A DIILS team for a five-day mobile program typically consists of four members, including a team leader. DIILS usually invites the Departments of Justice, Homeland Security, or State to contribute their best experts to each program. For example, a counter terrorism education team is often comprised of government civilians involved in combating terrorism, military operational law experts, and others with experience working in legal matters involving terrorism.

DIILS adjuncts have included military instructors from the United Nations Stability Mission in the Democratic Republic of Congo (MONUSCO), Canada, the United Kingdom, Australia, the U.S. Institute of Peace (USIP), former ambassadors and members of Congress, the Departments of Justice and Homeland Security, Naval War College, the Army Judge Advocate General's Legal Center and School (TJAGLCS) and its Center for Law and Military Operations (CLAMO), Naval Justice School, U.S. Air Force Judge Advocate General's School, and numerous academicians and line officers.

Resident Courses

DIILS is committed to offering in-depth instruction to address the most relevant legal topics challenging the defense sector in a multinational environment.

Participants are funded through Expanded IMET or CTFP, depending on the course topic. DIILS inaugurated a new resident course in 2015: Military Justice. It provides a comprehensive overview of the U.S. military justice system and comparative analysis of other military justice systems. Topics include substantive and procedural due process, evidentiary practice, trial advocacy, non-judicial alternatives to courts martial, appeals, the role of judges and transparency.

In resident and mobile programs alike, DIILS strives to present a variety of perspectives from U.S. and international experts with recent and relevant experience. A typical course features over 20 instructors. Resident courses emphasize the development of common best practices. They feature presentations and practical exercises based on real-world scenarios, as well as participant presentations on their national methods of addressing current rule of law issues.

Mobile Programs

DIILS mobile programs are venues for exploring innovative legal solutions or reviewing existing legal standards and procedures, while serving as a catalyst for positive change in national rule-of-law dynamics. DIILS activities help to enhance long-term partnerships between the Office of Security Cooperation (OSC) and the host nation legal community. Requests for DIILS engagement usually originate with the Security Cooperation Officer (SCO) in coordination with the appropriate Geographic Combatant Command.

DIILS instruction modules may be combined to create a tailored one-week seminar presented in-country by subject matter experts. Sample schedules in this catalog illustrate program options. Variables to consider include the legal challenges identified by the country team, requested or available subject matter experts, and the statutory authority of the funding source.

Topics are determined according to U.S. objectives and host country needs.

DIILS is the provider of choice for congressionally-mandated human rights and humanitarian law seminars for units receiving U.S. assistance under the Global Train and Equip Sec. 2282 (Authority to Build the Capacity of Foreign Security Forces) and the Global Security Contingency Fund (Sec. 1207). These two-day human rights seminars are particularly useful for units preparing to deploy to coalition stability operations.

Combating Terrorism (CT) is fraught with legal issues. Given the transnational character of the terrorist threat, DIILS CT seminars are increasingly regional or multinational, which has proven to be more economical and effective.

DIILS supports the Wales Initiative Fund (WIF) through defense institution-building events to encourage interoperability within the NATO Partnership for Peace (PfP). WIF-sponsored seminars, exchanges, workshops and consultations have included:

- Human Rights and the Law of Armed Conflict
- SOLARA: Legal Aspects of ROE and RUF in Stability Operations
- Peace and Stability Operations Exchanges
- Maritime or Land Border Security
- Developing a Professional Military Force and an Effective Non-Commissioned Officer Corps

- Defense Legislative Reform Workshops and Consultations

The Department of State has funded DIILS to conduct military justice training in the Democratic Republic of Congo.

Funding for Mobile Programs

As a reimbursable entity, DIILS activities and overhead are funded by requesting organizations. DIILS can accept most types of U.S. Government funds, e.g., Operation and Maintenance (O&M) funds, EIMET, CTFP, WIF, 2282, GSCF, PKO, FMS, Combatant Commanders' Initiative Funds, etc.

A full list of MASL numbers for DIILS events is located on the inside front cover of this catalog.

Site Survey (MASL P309050)*

DIILS typically conducts an initial visit to a country prior to designing an engagement program. This enables DIILS to thoroughly understand the challenges and trends that shape requirements for future engagement.

* WIF and PKO-funded programs use the same MASL number as their IMET counterparts. Contact DIILS for more information on programming with these funds.

U.S. Planning Visits (MASL P176023)*

The purpose of a U.S. planning visit is to confirm appropriate curriculum for planned in-country seminars, and familiarize partner nation officials with relevant U.S. legal organizations and processes. During a planning visit, a delegation from the host nation travels to locations in the United States selected by DIILS and the country team to conduct in-depth planning for proposed DIILS programs.

The Mobile Seminar (MASL P309061)*

With adequate advance notice, DIILS can create a tailored, in-country program to address any legal issue.

Regional Seminars (MASL P309062)*

DIILS regional OCONUS seminars address legal issues best solved through international cooperation, such as maritime security.

CONUS Seminars (MASL P176022)

Seminars conducted in the Continental U.S. (CONUS) are identical to a standard DIILS seminar or CT seminar, except the seminar location will be determined by the nature of the mission.

Observerships

These CONUS programs are designed for an individual or a small group of partner nation personnel to observe a U.S. process or work on a special project with DIILS.

Guidelines for Mobile Programs

Requests for DIILS mobile programs must be initiated by or coordinated with the U.S. Security Cooperation Officer in the partner nation, as a minimum. The procedure is outlined in the Security Assistance Management Manual. When programming a seminar, consider the following:

Daily Schedule and Participants. The seminar day normally runs 0830 to 1630, and includes several presentations, practical exercises, a case study, or break-out group period, and a wrap-up session. Periodic breaks, including a lunch break or lunch discussion, may be incorporated into the seminar day. Presentations by the host nation are also the norm. A typical mobile program includes 40-60 participants.

Participants must be selected based on their professional need to attend a given DIILS program, such as professional experience in an area covered by the seminar or the relevance of the seminar topic to a current or forthcoming job assignment. The optimal mix of attendees will vary, depending on the seminar topic and objective. They are typically in positions of leadership, and represent the armed forces, the judiciary, the ministries of defense, foreign affairs, justice, or interior.

Representatives from recognized non-governmental organizations are also welcome to attend at their own expense.

Facilities and Equipment. To optimize discussions, the presentation room should be large enough to accommodate all participants, including faculty and visitors. Ideally, luncheon and seminar facilities should be co-located. All rooms should have electrical outlets. The conference site should be equipped with a chalk board, flip chart pad and easel, and extension cords. Each participant should have a pen and a block of note paper. Copying capability is usually required, but may be off-site. The DIILS team will bring course materials, and can provide a laptop computer and projector, as well as portable interpreting equipment, if agreed in advance.

Language. Seminars are presented in English, with translation into the appropriate language when requested and arranged in advance with the assistance of the in-country team. Professional interpreters must be hired for the seminar when translation is required. Language services will be for the entire day, including lunch and breaks.

Coordination. Timely communications between DIILS (Regional Program Director or International Operations Officer) and the embassy staff (SCO, SDO/DATT, Training Officer) are critical to program success. The in-country point of contact should ensure an early and comprehensive exchange of information with DIILS regarding program planning, scheduling and logistics.

Support to DOD and DHS Schools

DIILS supports several Department of Defense (DoD) and Department of Homeland Security (DHS) schools with professional legal education. The DIILS Rule of Law and Disciplined Operations Course aims to enhance the international student's capacity to conduct military operations in accordance with the rule of law.

Topics during this one-week course include human rights, the role of the military in a democracy, rules of engagement, military justice, the law of armed conflict, military-media relations, peace operations, and other topics unique to that school and class.

The Rule of Law and Disciplined Operations course is taught by U.S. judge advocate instructors assigned by DIILS.

Course Locations

- Coast Guard International Maritime Officer Course – Yorktown, Virginia (P176038)
- International Surface Warfare Officer School – Naval Station Newport, Rhode Island (P121022, P122571, P179135, and P176136)
- Inter-American Air Forces Academy (IAAFA) – San Antonio, Texas (D176006)
- Naval Small Craft Instruction and Technical Training School (NAVSCIATTS) – Stennis Space Center, Mississippi (P176036)

Many of these schools accept individual international participants for the one-week Rule of Law Course.

MOBILE PROGRAM DESCRIPTIONS AND SCHEDULES

Defense Institution Building

Countries seeking to enhance their armed forces often focus on training and equipment, but the greater challenge is to balance operational capabilities and institutional capacity. Establishing transparency, accountability and oversight, the components of legal capacity, is critical to achieving effective defense institutions. The objective of DIILS defense institution-building (DIB) engagements is to build international partner capacity to administer and carry out legal functions at MOD, Defense and Service HQ and major unit levels, and to sustain a cadre of effective legal advisors.

In a workshop setting, participants collaboratively analyze the legal environment, identify areas that would benefit from new or updated organization, legislation or regulation, and discuss solutions. The DIILS team provides the legal expertise to facilitate productive discussions that lead to concrete proposals. DIILS DIB workshops examine defense-sector legal capacity in the following areas:

- Border Security
- Combating Corruption
- Combating Terrorism
- Defense Sector Governance
- Developing a Professional Military
- Domestic Operations (e.g., MSCA/DSCA, HA/DR)
- Human Rights
- Maritime Security (e.g., Law Enforcement and Law of the Sea)
- Military Justice
- Operational Law (e.g., LOAC, ROE, SOFA)
- Peace and Stability Operations

Human Rights and International Humanitarian Law (MASL P309466)

The DIILS Human Rights and International Humanitarian Law seminar satisfies the Congressional mandate for U.S. assistance under Sec. 2282 to include “elements that promote observance of and respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms and respect for legitimate civilian authority.” This requirement, which first appeared in Section 1206 of the 2006 National Defense Authorization Act (NDAA) as the Global Train and Equip Program, is now a staple of U.S. foreign assistance law and DoD Instruction 5111.19. A similar requirement exists in Section 1207 of the 2012 NDAA (Global Security Contingency Fund) and Section 1203 of the 2014 NDAA (Training with Military and Other Security Forces of Friendly Foreign Countries) and Section 1263 of the 2016 NDAA, the South China Sea Initiative.

DIILS is the provider of choice for these human rights seminars, with a curriculum that has been reviewed for compliance with the law by the DoD General Counsel, the Under Secretary of Defense for Policy, and Congressional committee staff members. In light of the statutory requirement for this training to be given to members of the units that receive U.S. assistance, this two-day event offers information that operational units need to comply with international norms.

Day one focuses on human rights: observing and respecting human rights, respect for civilian authority, applicable regional human rights agreements, right against torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment, human rights & armed conflict law against gender violence, and use of force in law enforcement. Day two focuses on international humanitarian law, also known as the law of armed conflict: international armed conflict & the law, non international armed conflict & the law, rules of engagement, and targeting. The DIILS team members are selected based on their experience in the mission-essential task list of the unit to be trained, and case studies and discussion problems are tailored for relevance to the country or region.

Operational Law and Human Rights: Operational Law (MASL 309056)

This seminar prepares operational commanders, staff officers, civilian policymakers, and their lawyers to conduct effective domestic and international military operations in compliance with international norms by examining relevant international human rights law and the law of armed conflict (LOAC). The seminar focuses on identifying operational challenges and developing effective and lawful solutions. Highlights include the benefits of an effective military justice system, implementing training programs on human rights and the law of armed conflict, and creating practical rules of engagement (ROE) and rules for the use of force (RUF).

The DIILS team facilitates small group discussions of realistic scenarios in which participants develop solutions within applicable law. Such discussions may include developing notional RUF or ROE. The sample schedule illustrates a range of possible presentations, which can be adapted to the participants' needs and their scheduled deployments.

SAMPLE LAW OF ARMED CONFLICT AND HUMAN RIGHTS SEMINAR

Operational Law and Human Rights: Law of Armed Conflict and Human Rights* (LCHR) (MASL 309061)

This mobile seminar is designed for military commanders, staff officers and lawyers, as well as civilian officials participating in international or non international military operations that involve the use of force. It focuses on effectively achieving the mission while staying within the boundaries of the law of armed conflict (LOAC) and adhering to international human rights law.

The course objective is to demonstrate how this actually enhances the effectiveness of military operations. The seminar “operationalizes” LOAC and Human Rights law through presentations, practical exercises and discussions on applying LOAC and international human rights law in an operational setting. The DIILS team features experienced judge advocates, human rights experts and, when appropriate, experts from other nations with LOAC and human rights experience.

Human Rights is an EIMET Core Element*

Operational Law and Human Rights: Domestic Operations and Defense Support of Civil Authorities (MASL 309061)

This seminar is designed for military and civilian officials responsible for organizing and planning a government-wide response to natural or man-made disasters and emergencies. It highlights the benefits of international human rights standards, the importance of integrating rules for the use of force (RUF) and related training in operational planning, and examines best practices and lessons learned related to the effective integration of military capabilities into the overall response to disasters, or other emergent civil and homeland defense situations.

The seminar examines the U.S. National Incident Management System and National Response Framework, as well as the established coordination relationships and responsibilities (including military support to civil authorities) at the U.S. national and local levels. The DIILS team facilitates discussions and leads exercises that emphasize interagency cooperation and RUF in disaster operations.

A seminar for military forces deploying to assist another nation with disaster relief is also available. The sample schedule offers a range of potential topics.

Operational Law and Human Rights: Operational Law and Emergent Technologies (MASL 309061)

This seminar is designed for military officers and civilian officials involved in fighting terrorist activity in the cyber/digital world, including policy-makers, investigators, prosecutors, legislators, and staff. It builds on national or regional experience, using teams drawn from the Department of Justice and other U.S. agencies with expertise in the legal aspects of combating terrorist crimes, computer crimes, and the abuse of the internet to conduct cyber-attacks on government or critical infrastructure.

The DIILS team presents U.S. case studies and facilitates small group discussions of realistic scenarios in which participants develop solutions in light of relevant law. Discussion topics include how to investigate and prosecute cyber-crimes, implementation of the Tallinn Manual, autonomous weapons systems, and allowable self-defense.

Military Justice* (MASL 319058)

This seminar is designed for nations seeking to modify or enhance their system of military justice. For a military transitioning from an inquisitorial to an adversarial trial system, the seminar can focus on the roles of U.S. military judges and trial advocates, as well as court-martial procedures and practices. Alternately, the seminar can focus on the U.S. military system of administrative discharges and non-judicial punishments. The sample schedule illustrates a range of military justice topics, but each seminar will be based on the areas targeted for reform.

All seminars include opportunities for presentations by host-nation lawyers on their current practices or planned military justice system, so the DIILS team can select the most useful examples and focus small group work on timely needs. Mock trials and administrative hearings, case studies, practical exercises, and group discussions provide opportunities for participants to experience relevant aspects of the U.S. military system in action.

Maritime Law Enforcement and The Law of The Sea (MASL 309060)

This seminar for military officers and civilian officials engaged in maritime law enforcement or coastal and border security aims to enhance institutional capacity in the areas of international law of military operations and maritime law enforcement. It addresses the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea (UNCLOS) and focuses on regional issues.

The seminar can be tailored to the experience of the participants and applicable threats. Highlights include discussions on piracy, fisheries protection, comparisons between the law of armed conflict and maritime law enforcement, maritime claims and disputes, rules of engagement and rules for the use of force. The DIILS team facilitates group discussions of real-world maritime scenarios in which participants develop notional solutions within applicable law. DIILS can also conduct a regional seminar on this topic.

Developing a Professional Military and the Law (MASL 309059)

This seminar examines the legal framework for developing or maintaining a professional military, a cornerstone of an effective, accountable, and transparent defense sector. The DIILS team, topics, and group discussion themes are selected to meet host-nation needs. The sample schedule illustrates a range of topics, such as recruitment and retention, discipline, ethics regulations, the function of the Inspector General, and gender integration.

Countries considering structural changes in recruiting, retaining, and maintaining a professional military may be interested in discussing U.S. military standards and procedures in these areas. Presentations and case studies can also be tailored for those interested in U.S. personnel qualifications and continuing education standards for military police investigators or military lawyers (operational advisors, judges, prosecution or defense counsel). Discussion problems are designed to promote small group analysis of standards and systems required to develop a professional military, administered and operated within the rule of law, under civilian control.*

Legal Aspects of Combating Corruption (MASL 309061)

This seminar is for military officers and civilian officials involved in the fight against public corruption, including government executives and policy-makers, investigators, prosecutors, legislators and staff, NGOs, and others. By encouraging wide participation, DIILS seeks to promote understanding and cooperation among government and other entities. The seminar includes presentations, case studies, exercises and group discussions to encourage development of a systemic approach to preventing, detecting, investigating, and prosecuting corruption in public institutions.

The seminar can be tailored to address one or several themes, as shown in the sample schedule: the international legal framework for fighting corruption, standards of conduct in public institutions, transparent public sector management, effective investigation and prosecution of corruption offenses, and international cooperation. Although DIILS presentations of U.S. corruption cases illustrate U.S. laws and methods of investigation and prosecution, the seminar underscores that public corruption is a universal problem. DIILS encourages host-nation presentations to identify contrasting corruption challenges and potential remedies, such as statutory or procedural changes. This seminar can also be conducted as a more advanced and specialized CONUS visit.

Legal Aspects of Combating Terrorism (MASL 309063)

This seminar addresses the international law of human rights and law of armed conflict applicable to combating terrorism. It focuses on building interagency cooperation and implementing effective methods that comply with international norms. The topics in the sample schedule can be tailored as required. For example, one seminar for law enforcement officials featured U.S. Department of Justice lawyers and investigators explaining U.S. laws and techniques for information-sharing, investigating, and successfully prosecuting terrorist suspects.

This seminar is an excellent opportunity to bring together civilian and military officials from one or several nations to build trust, mutual understanding, and relationships for future cooperation. The DIILS team facilitates small group discussions and staff exercises designed to highlight relevant law and stimulate discussion on effective and lawful techniques to combat terrorism. DIILS also encourages seminar participants to give presentations that promote sharing of best practices and common challenges. This seminar is also approved for EIMET and CTFP funding as a CONUS seminar (MASL 176028).

Border Security Law - Land or Maritime (MASL 309061)

This seminar is for military and civilian officials who secure national borders against transnational threats. The focus is on developing effective means to address border security challenges within the rule of law by examining the legal issues, international human rights standards, and relevant international agreements. Suggested topics include treaty-based law that is implemented by domestic statutes (e.g., trafficking in persons, small arms and light weapons, counter-narcotics, refugees and internally displaced persons).

This seminar is an excellent opportunity to bring together officials from the host nation or regional organizations to clarify their respective roles and build interagency cooperation. The sample schedule offers a range of possible topics to be selected based on country team objectives. A seminar for nations with maritime borders might include a discussion on coastal state law enforcement authorities under the UN Convention on the Law of the Sea (UNCLOS), with examples of effective laws drawn from the Coast Guard's Model Maritime Service Code. For nations facing land border challenges, U.S. lawyers would explain U.S. customs, immigration and terrorism laws, and provide case studies of U.S. efforts to enforce these laws, including investigations and prosecutions.

The DIILS team uses presentations, case studies, exercises, and group discussions to outline a systemic approach to border security operations. DIILS encourages presentations by host nation officials in order to focus discussions on relevant international and domestic laws.

Legal Aspects of Peace/Stability Operations (MASL 309057)

This seminar for senior policy-makers, legal advisors, commanders and staff officers covers the legal issues arising in coalition stability operations and in United Nations (UN) and other international peace operations. The goal of this seminar is to enhance awareness of the means available to address all manner of legal challenges that arise during these operations.

The DIILS team uses case studies, practical exercises, and group discussions to facilitate understanding of key legal issues and likely operational challenges, providing a comprehensive and stimulating learning experience. The sample schedule illustrates a range of possible presentations. Topics may include the functions of the UN offices working with Troop Contributing Nations and pertinent legal issues, or the immunities and privileges of peacekeepers under UN Status of Mission Agreements. While each seminar is tailored to the needs of the participants, core elements of this seminar typically include a thorough discussion of applicable rules of engagement, the relevant law of armed conflict, as well as legal challenges related to peacekeeping forces, including military cooperation with formed police units.

RESIDENT COURSE AND SCHEDULE

Legal Aspects of Peacekeeping Operations (LAPKO) (MASL P179619)

The new LAPKO resident course offers a comprehensive analysis of the legal aspects of United Nations-sanctioned peacekeeping operations. It details the operational implications of the agreed legal basis for action, the rules of engagement challenges that derive from the respective UN authorities and the development of international agreements associated with peacekeeping missions. In addition, case studies and practical exercises will enable participants to exchange ideas, compare their experiences, and explore the boundaries of applicable legal norms. Upon course completion, participants will have a comprehensive and practical understanding of international legal standards that will better prepare them to prepare, plan and execute the full spectrum of UN peace operations. LAPKO features a visit to UN Headquarters in New York City and briefings from UN peacekeeping officials.

Recommended Attendees

- Military officers or civilian officials who are, or who plan to be, involved in UN peacekeeping operations
- Military legal advisors,
- Military planners and staff officers,
- Military police,
- Military commanders.

Course Focus

- UN Authorities and Standards
- International Human Rights Protections
- International Agreements (e.g., SOFA, Peace Treaties)
- Peacekeeper Conduct and Discipline, including Sexual Exploitation and Abuse (SEA)
- National planning and legislation for peacekeeping

Legal Aspects of Defense Support of Civil Authorities (LADSCA) (MASL P176042)

The three-week LADSCA course promotes Defense Support of Civil Authorities (DSCA) that is consistent with democratic rule of law, protection of human rights and reasonable use of force. LADSCA will also present international legal mechanisms for timely and consent-based delivery of Humanitarian Assistance and Disaster Relief (HA/DR) to nations struck by disaster including pandemics. During this course, experienced U.S. and international practitioners will relate their experience and discuss best practices for a variety of emergency situations where the military is called to support law enforcement.

The course objective is to promote the responsible use of defense resources in support of civilian police and emergency response authorities, and to enhance the capability of partner nations to plan for and receive humanitarian assistance and disaster relief (HA/DR) from the United States and other donors.

Participants visit New York City, where they have an opportunity to meet with United Nations and local civil authorities experts. They will also take part in cultural familiarization activities in Newport, RI, and New York City under the DIILS Field Studies Program (FSP).

Recommended Attendees

- Military planners and staff officers
- Military legal advisors
- Parliamentary staff
- Military commanders
- Civilian emergency response personnel who serve as liaison with the military

Course Focus

- Comparative legal and constitutional basis for military support of civil authorities.
- International agreements that provide a legal basis for international HA/DR assistance.
- Use of Force rules and human rights protection.
- Case studies related to counter terrorism, detention, counter drug operations, maritime law enforcement operations, security for special events and response to civil disturbance.
- Battlefield forensics in support of detention operations and criminal prosecution.

Law of Armed Conflict and Human Rights (LCHR) (MASL P176019)

This three-week course for military commanders and staff officers is offered twice a year. LCHR enables participants to better understand and implement their nation's commitment to international legal instruments that control the use of force and the treatment of persons in the context of all types of military operations, including those that involve international cooperation. Participants identify human rights and law of armed conflict issues that arise in the context of military operations and learn the general areas of the law that serve as standards for resolving these issues. They also take part in cultural familiarization activities in Newport, RI, Boston, MA, and New York City under the DIILS Field Studies Program (FSP).

Recommended Attendees

- Non-lawyer military officers (e.g., commanders and staff officers) who are or may be involved with unilateral internal security, border security or counter-terrorism operations, or coalition operations, such as UN or NATO operations.
- Civilian officials who are involved with planning or oversight of military operations.

- Military legal advisors may attend this course, but will find that the DIILS Military Law Development Program (MLDP I and II) provides the additional coverage of legal issues necessary for preparation as a legal advisor. MLDP participants attend LCHR, but receive additional instruction on military justice and international law.

Course Focus

- How to conduct military operations, including multinational operations, in accordance with the law of armed conflict and human rights law.
- The application of international humanitarian law (law of armed conflict) and human rights law to a variety of domestic and international operations including NATO, UN peacekeeping, humanitarian relief, border security, internal security, and counterterrorism operations.
- The course features military speakers with recent and relevant experience, interactive exercises, and case studies. Please see sample course schedules.

RESIDENT COURSE AND SCHEDULE

The International Law of Military Operations Course (ILOMO) (MASL P176027)

This three-week course prepares military legal advisors for a more constructive role in operational planning and advising operational commanders. The ILOMO faculty of U.S. and international subject matter experts present the most up-to-date developments for military legal advisors. ILOMO participants join U.S. Naval Justice School students for lectures and practical exercises. Participants also take part in cultural familiarization activities in Newport, RI, Boston, MA, and New York City under the DIILS Field Studies Program (FSP).

Recommended Attendees

- Advanced course for military legal advisors, but open to military commanders and staff officers. Please consult with the DIILS Resident Course Director about sending a non-lawyer to ILOMO.
- Parts of the ILOMO course are combined with the Naval Justice School's Law of Military Operations (LOMO) course for U.S. Navy and Marine Corps Judge Advocates.

Course Focus

- A complete overview of law and military operations.
- The latest developments in the application of international legal standards to military operations, including the Law of Armed Conflict, Law of the Sea, rules of engagement, status of forces agreements, environmental law and counter-terrorism and counter-piracy.
- A firearms training simulator exercise tests the application of principles of International Law of Armed Conflict, Use of Force, and Rules of Engagement.
- The combined ILOMO-LOMO sessions offer opportunities to exchange views and develop working relationships with U.S. counterparts. Please see sample course schedules.

Military Law Development Program (MASL P176026 & P176029)

MLDP combines several DIILS programs to provide military legal advisors with a comprehensive curriculum of military justice and operational law. MLDP prepares participants for successful integration into coalition operations and empowers them with knowledge of best practices in international human rights law, operational law, and military justice. The operational law component covers international law, human rights law, law of armed conflict, and rules of engagement. Participants practice providing legal advice to commanders in role-playing exercises. The military justice component features advanced legal concepts in criminal law, procedural due process, and a comparative analysis of military law of other nations.

Participants visit the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces in Washington, D.C. and discuss military law with practitioners. They visit with key United Nations officials at UN Headquarters in New York City, and take part in cultural familiarization activities in Newport, RI, Boston, MA, New York City, and Washington D.C.

Recommended Attendees

Legal Aspects of Combating Terrorism (LCT) (MASL P176028)

The goal of this three-week course is to explore effective means for combating terrorism within the rule of law. LCT covers the international law that applies to combating terrorism in three contexts: internal disturbances (domestic crime); non international armed conflict (a common tactic of insurgents); and international armed conflict. Anti-terrorism and counter-terrorism experts from the U.S. Departments of Defense, Justice, and Homeland Security emphasize interagency cooperation.

Participants travel to New York City for site visits and briefings with the U.S. Coast Guard (maritime security), United Nations Combating Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate (anti-terrorism, consequence management), and an Emergency Management Operations Center (interagency coordination in crisis response). Participants also take part in cultural familiarization activities in Newport, RI, Boston, MA, and New York City under the DIILS Field Studies Program (FSP).

Recommended Attendees

- Military officers and civilian officials who are, or who plan to be, involved with law enforcement or military efforts to combat terrorism.
- The course is designed for non-lawyers, although lawyers will find the lectures and curriculum will deepen their understanding of the relevant law and the discussion of effective methods of combating terrorism making them more effective advisors to policy-makers, law enforcement, or military counter-terrorism practitioners.

Course Focus

- The international law that applies to combating terrorism in each of its three contexts: internal disturbances (domestic crime); non international armed conflict (insurgencies); and international armed conflict.
- Interagency cooperation.
- Requirements include extensive readings, small group discussion problems and role-playing exercises on applying the Rules for the Use of Force and Rules of Engagement, including participation in a Firearms Training Simulator exercise.

Legal Aspects of Combating Corruption (LCC) (MASL P176040)

Corruption in the defense sector hinders military efficacy, erodes confidence in democratic governance, and facilitates transnational crime and terrorism. The LCC course addresses the international legal framework for combating corruption, and the interplay of national law and policy within that framework. It enhances participants' ability to act against public corruption in the defense sector and to improve national efforts to prevent, detect, investigate and prosecute corrupt practices. LCC promotes interaction between participants and policy-makers, corruption prevention experts and law enforcement officials.

Each participant analyzes his or her national defense sector approach to combating corruption relative to international standards and best practices. The faculty includes anti-corruption practitioners representing local, state and the Federal government, nongovernmental organizations and the media.

During the three-week LCC course, participants take part in cultural familiarization activities in Newport, RI, Boston, MA, and Washington D.C. under the DIILS Field Studies Program (FSP).

Recommended Attendees

- Mid-grade and senior military and government officials engaged in activities intended to prevent, detect, investigate, and prosecute corruption in the defense sector.

Course Focus

- Mechanisms of Transparency and Accountability, Standards of Conduct, Investigation and Prosecution of Corruption Offenses, the International Legal Framework for Anti-Corruption Programs, and International Cooperation and Assistance.
- Case studies from international and domestic settings, such as former U.S. Air Force procurement executive Darleen Druyun, and former U.S. Congressman Randall Cunningham.

U.S. COAST GUARD MODEL MARITIME SERVICE CODE (USCG MMSC)

The purpose of the MMSC program is to develop or enhance a maritime service and the domestic laws the maritime service enforces. The program can assist maritime nations in strengthening their naval and coast guard forces in areas relating to border security, national defense, counter-terrorism, maritime law enforcement, search and rescue, merchant marine safety, aids to navigation, and environmental protection.

Although the MMSC was designed to give partner nations a tool to update or modernize their maritime infrastructure, enforcement frameworks and regulations, including legislative changes, with a degree of independence, the level of assistance needed to carry out these changes depends on numerous factors. USCG MMSC training has been conducted in over 20 countries since the program's inception in 1994. More information on the program is available online in the U. S. Coast Guard's International Training Handbook.

Multi-Phase Approach

The USCG MMSC program follows a multi-phase approach, consisting of a country assessment, a planning visit, and an action phase. However, assistance under the USCG MMSC program can be tailored to suit the maritime initiatives and challenges of individual countries.

Assessment (MASL P319132)

U.S. Coast Guard mission specialists and attorneys travel to the host nation to conduct an assessment of the country's domestic maritime activities and related legal structure.

Planning Visit (MASL P319133)

Delegates from the participating country visit the United States to observe how maritime matters are addressed by the U.S. Coast Guard, Navy, and other agencies, and to develop plans for maritime regulatory initiatives and legislative changes that best meet their needs.

Action Phase (MASL P319140, P319141)

When program preparations are complete, mission specialists and attorneys typically return to the host nation to assist in fine-tuning maritime policy initiatives. These visits can involve operational training for maritime personnel, or to review best practices for drafting regulations, legislation, or strategic planning documents.
